

U.S. GOVERNMENT ACCOUNTABILITY OFFICE

Tatiana Winger

Tatiana Winger is an Acting Director in the International Affairs and Trade team at the Government Accountability Office (GAO). She leads a diverse body of work related to foreign affairs management, which includes issues such as passport and visa operations within Consular Affairs, embassy construction, and management of multi-lateral institutions. For many years prior, Tatiana led a large body of work covering a broad range of federal contracting issues, such as tribal participation in federal contracting, COVID-related contracting provisions, and commercial item pricing. She has also developed and taught classes and lectures on federal contracting and is regularly consulted on legislative issues related to the federal procurement system. She graduated from Boston University with a bachelor's degree in art history and received a master's degree in business from the Heller School at Brandeis University.
